Meeting of the Chamber of Mines.

JOHANNESBURG, April 6 .- A meeting of the Chamber of Mines, the first since the beginning of the war, has been held here. The president of the chamber said in an address that it was greatly due to General Botha that much wanton destruction had been avoided, as he had held the commandant of the town personally responsible for the destruction of any property which might occur. The president also said is was highly probable that by next July half of the mining industry would be in operation and that before many months fullworking would be resumed.

BERLIN, April 6 .- The phenomenal success of the Russian loan has not influenced the bourse, and all departments during the last week exhibited stagnation bordering on lethargy. The hopes of those who looked for an improvement in business with the new quarter have been sharply disappointed. The unfavorable situation of the coal trade continues to grow, and in Westphalia numerous further discharges of operatives have been announced for April 15. The conviction also gains ground that the improvement in the iron market will not realize expectations. These conditions depressed iron and coal shares during the last week, and almost without ex- claimed: "I demand justice!" ception industrial shares were lower. The steamship companies, eager to recoup themselves from the disastrous effects of last year's 'slump" in American visitors, have long ooked forward to the rush which they confidently expected would begin about the middle of March, and to the continued crowding and crushing of our American cousins across the ocean until within a day or two of the coronation. But all calculations have been set at naught by the disinclination of would-be travelers to book their passages. Two years ago, when the exhibition was on in Paris, all the steamship lines were booked up to the last berth at the beginning of the spring. This year the booking is not better than at any other normal season, and the steamship companies have endless rows of cabins to spare. "I think the cause of it is," said a steamship agent yesterday, "that Americans have become frightened at the reports of immense sums that were to be charged for bedrooms and for windows from which to gle to right. Cincinnati took the lead in view the procession. The statements of huge sums having been asked-and givenfor accommodation have been cabled over to America, and people of moderate means have, therefore, made up their minds not to come here. It is another case of too much greediness killing trade. If people had been content to keep prices at their normal figures they would not now have to look forward to a rather depressing season-that is, so far as the Americans are concerned. The agent had nothing to say, however, on the question of steamship companies raising their transatlantic rates, which no doubt had contributed toward causing abstentions West End tradesmen are not at all pleased at the idea of spreading the news that everything in London will be dearer than usual during the summer. In Bond street this policy of frightening people away is condemned with much emphasis. "Things are bad enough as it is," said a proprietor of a large jewelry house, "and we do not care particularly to see more custom driven away. I hear from my agents, not only in the United States, but in France and Germany as well, that many people who would otherwise have come to London to view the coronation processions have made up their minds to stay away because of the incessant reports that are going about that prices in hotels, shops, theaters, restaurants, and even railways are to be raised, and in many cases doubled.
